Rituals. Transform. Change.

- Teri Skoog, Community Relations Coordinator

Rituals, anthropologists will tell us, are about transformation. The rituals we use are as elaborate as they are because we associate them with a major life passage, the crossing of a critical threshold, or in other words, with change. - Dr. Abraham Verghese

At Corridor Crossing Place we value the importance of personal traditions, rituals and routines. We recognize that it is the little things that make a difference, especially in a major life passage like crossing the threshold into a new apartment. That is why one of the first questions we ask anyone considering our community as a new home is “what routines and rituals are important for you to continue when moving to a new community?” It is those little rituals that make a home; a cup of coffee while watching the sun rise, taking your time reading the newspaper from front to back, having a scoop of favorite ice-cream as a bedtime snack, sipping on a glass of wine while watching a romance movie, or “facetiming” the grandkids every Thursday night. These are the rituals that matter. These are the little things that make a home and help with transition during a major life passage. These are the things we do best at Corridor Crossing Place. These rituals, as Dr. Verghese suggests, are the foundation of our culture, our lives and what helps us get through even the most difficult of changes. Give me us a call today and share with us your most valuable ritual and you won’t be surprised at how hard our team works to make that a part of our community.

Dare to Dream

DARE TO Dream

- Jessica-Leigh Arends, Life Enrichment Coordinator

At Corridor Crossing Place, we strive to make at least one resident dream come true each month through the Senior Housing program "Dare to Dream." In getting to know Lloyd he talked of his past years in farming, and how he really wanted to see the field's harvested this fall. We set out to make this dream a reality!

Amanda Manternach of Monticello worked with her husband Rod and their neighbor Norm Zimmerman to organize day at their farm! Lloyd dreamed of a hot dog with relish and fresh berries - we started our day with a picnic that had just that in the gorgeous "Z-Barn" owned by Norm and his family.

Lloyd smiles as he spends the afternoon in the fields

Farmers check the dryness of the corn with a bite!

Norm took Lloyd, his friend Bill and our staff out into the field on his ATV. The farmers tested the dryness of the corn by biting into it, to see if it was ready to harvest. Lloyd was able to predict the "dryness number" almost as well as the computers that test it today!

Lloyd's Dream - The Farm

Stories were shared all afternoon of fields, crops and yields. There was mention of machinery, livestock and generations of those who came before them, and those who planned to follow after. The Manternach family surprised Lloyd with an Iowa Hawkeye "America Needs Farmers" hat and shirt, which just goes to show you the true kindness of strangers - and that the bond of those who farm runs deep! We brought 2 buckets of corn we picked in the fields back to CCP for our squirrels and groundhogs!

Norm, Lloyd and Bill talk about their years of farming, the past and present over lunch

Interested in nominating one of our residents for their very own Dare to Dream? Contact any manager at Corridor Crossing with your idea and we'll get to dreaming with them!
